LEC 16 - Negotiator & Membership Engagement Lead

About Joelle Jaeger

My journey with Horizon Air began in 2007 as a SEA based flight attendant. In 2010, I was drawn to the training department as an inflight trainer working with new hire flight attendants. After five years, I left the training department to devote time to furthering my education. I also worked from the GEG base for five years and since August 2017, I have returned to SEA and enjoy working on both the E175 and Q400.

I'm especially excited for the opportunity to represent our flight attendants and have had a strong desire to be a part of the negotiation process for many years. The process that will ultimately improve our quality of life. Our hard-working flight attendants have valuable qualities and offer service that only Horizon Air flight attendants are known for. We've embraced the required duties of representing the Alaska brand and do an amazing job at it.

I look forward to participating with the Membership Engagement Team during negotiations. This team will encourage and educate fellow flight attendants of the value and professionalism that we bring to our job and the company every day. Every task that is added to our plate, we do an amazing job of completing it with a commitment to safety first. For a successful outcome with negotiations, our work group will need to show management improvements in the contract are essential and long overdue. Each flight attendant is a voice and in order to make positive changes to our work/life balance, that voice needs to be heard. The membership engagement chairs will offer support, important information and guidance to you, our flight attendants, in how you can participate in creating a successful negotiation outcome.
